February 11, 2007—Sixth Sunday In Ordinary Time

M & M's

Congratulations to all couples who renew their marriage vows this weekend here at our parish. On this World Marriage Day let us pray that God will bless all the married couples in our parish and give them the strength to be good spouses, and for many, good parents.

The book I spoke about in my homily last week is titled "Rome Sweet Home" written by Scott & Kimberly Hahn, published by Ignatius Press, 1993. It is the journey of a couple who were Presbyterian and in their studies of faith realized the misconceptions that the Protestant faith gave about the Catholic Church found the faith of the Catholic Church to be the one true church. It is an excellent book to help us Catholics see what we have sometimes forgotten about our Church.

Our Gospel this week speaks of the poor. When ancient Jews used the word poor, they used it in a variety of ways and, hence, in different senses than we use it today. We use it to refer to someone who is destitute. We use it to refer to someone who has no material wealth.

This kind of poverty—material poverty—is not a good thing. It is an evil thing. It is the kind of thing that every Christian ought to be trying to eradicate from our midst.

Jesus never intended to call material poverty blessed. He never intended to approve of the poverty that we see in the slums of our cities and that he also saw in the cities of his time. Who and what did Jesus have in mind, then, when he said, "Blessed are you who are poor"?

The Hebrew word for "poor" that Jesus used was the word 'ani. This word had an interesting history. It went through four stages of development before reaching the meaning that Jesus had in mind when he used it on the Sermon on the Mount.

First, the word could be used as we use it: to refer to those people who were without material wealth.

Second, because these people were without material wealth, they were also without influence and power. They were without clout. And this gave rise to a second way that the word could be used. It could be used to refer to those people who were helpless and without influence.

Third, because these people were helpless, they were often oppressed and exploited. This led to a third meaning of the word poor. It could also be used to refer to the exploited people.

Fourth, because these people were without wealth, without help, and without protection, many of them put all their trust in God. This gave rise to the fourth and final meaning of the word poor. It described those persons who put their total trust in God.

And this is what Jesus meant in the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus was referring to those people without wealth, without influence, and without protection, who put all their hope and trust in God. Thus the poor whom Jesus called blessed were those people who had come to realize that they could not depend on the things of this world for happiness. So they sought their happiness in God alone. God meant everything to them. Material things meant next to nothing to them. These people, as Jesus said, were truly blessed.

In other words we might reword the statement to say: "Blessed are they who realize that they can't depend on the things of this world for happiness and put all their trust in God."

Where does your happiness come from? Is it in a big house, new car, jewelry or having enough money to buy whatever you like? If we listen to the Sermon on the Mount, we can find that happiness is not in what we have physically, but what we are given from God. Only when we realize what God gives to us can we find the happiness we desire.
